THE FORGOTTEN MAN

Almost every time we read a newspaper we see another report about something a state or federal government is doing for somebody. We have laws for the farmer, the worker, the needy, the exporter, the importer, the shipper—laws for almost everybody you can think of.

In the last seven years, governments have pitched in and done all sorts of things for special groups of citizens. But who made it possible for the governments to do those things? Where did the governments get the resources, the credit and the power to do those things?

The forgotten man. He is the man who went about his own business; who managed to scrimp and scrape by on his income and wig off relief; who voted for the laws designed to help him but his neighbors.

He, too, is the man whose steadiness kept the credit of governments good, for everybody knew that in the end it would supply the money that would pay off debts. And he is the man who keeps on and on contributing taxes and taxes and taxes, until he is dizzy.

If all these forgotten men had gone busted, had stopped work, had stopped producing wealth that would have resulted in taxes, isn't it about time that thought and thanks were given to the people, now apparently forgotten, who stood out in the seven years' storm like sentinels?

We may erect statues to them when they are gone, we may put their names in history books; we may name rivers and trees and flowers after them. But they're human like all of us, and it is about time we gave them a pat on the back.

"I AM THE FARMER"

The farmer himself often does not stop and think what an important part he plays in the life of the people around him. He is the one who produces the food that sustains the life of the farmer, and often gives voice to his sentiments. The following by J. P. McDonald, editor of the Tribune at Waverly, Michigan, sums up the case pretty well in the following words:

I am the provider of all mankind—upon me every human being constantly depends. A world itself is built upon my toil, my products, my honesty.

Because of my industry, America, my country, leads the world. Her prosperity is maintained by my great commerce, and it is the work of my good hand; her balance of trade springs from the furrows of my farm.

My reaper brings food for today; my plow holds promise for tomorrow.

In war I am absolute; in peace I am indispensable—my country's surest defense and constant reliance.

I am the very soul of America, the hope of a race, the balance wheel of civilization.

When I prosper, men are happy and when I fail the world suffers.

I live with Nature, walk in the green fields under the golden sunlight, out in the great alone where brain and brawn and toil supply mankind's primary need. And I try to do my humble part in carrying out the great plan of God.

Even the birds are my companions; they greet me with a sympathy for the new day's dawn and the old day's sunset. I feel the evening prayer is said.

If it were not for me treasures of the earth would be unrecalled. Locked, the granaries would be useless farms; man himself would be doomed speedily to extinction.

Through me is produced energy that maintains the spark of life. I rise with the early dawn and retire when the "chores" of the world are done.

I am your friend. I am the farmer.

Hard work and no play may make Jack a dull boy, but later in years he usually has money in the bank.

AS OTHER EDITORS SEE IT

"ECONOMY"

Governor Cane's desire to abolish all continuing appropriations and to pool all state money in one fund would accomplish two highly desirable ends, both to the benefit of the taxpayer:

Continuing appropriations are those set up under certain circumstances, and it then continued without further legislative authority year after year. It is a well known rule of politics that it is much easier to prevent repeal of a law than it is to get one enacted.

The result is that many arms of government have hung on needlessly for years, piling up expenses because of special laws specifically which would rally a majority of the legislature to repeal the authority. If every department or demand for expense had to justify itself with the legislature every two years, the annual budget might be a great deal less.

The idea of pooling all state funds, instead of having them segregated into 135 separate and miscellaneous funds, at present would appeal to a banker. It is common sense.

For instance, the average person wouldn't think of putting his money in one pocket, his grocery money in another, his night club, extravagant (in his opinion) pocket, and his gasoline money in the car pocket. That in effect is what the state does with its money. Then it has a surplus in many funds, and a shortage in others. For years the state has maintained a bankable surplus, running at high as $2,000,000, which is nothing but more or less idle money sitting around in banks earning two percent.

That money comes out of the pockets of the people. It represents waste, because it is money that should not have been taken from the taxpayers in the first place, unless needed. Governor Cane's idea of pooling all funds into one and disbursing according to a complete budget, is in accord with the wishes of the Dade county senator and representative.

We hope, from the standpoint of the much-abused term "economy" that the new reform bill, if enacted, will be a real one. It may be a little late, but it is not too late to make a change.

ONE CANAL ENOUGH

It would seem going a bit too far for this peninsula to have two canals cutting across it for an accommodation of Gulf - Atlantic shipping, when there is but one across the isthmus for the combined trade of the two greatest oceans. There already is a canal running from Stuart on the East Coast to Fort Myers on the West Coast. It is of a depth of one foot only at present, and the additional cost to bring it to the depth and form of the proposed canal would be about $10,000,000. That estimated for the other canal. Just why army engineers and congressmen and senators overlook development of an existing canal which could be achieved at a fraction of the cost of a new one, and stop them from relieving any amount of interrupting the flow of arduous water or impregnating fresh water wells with salt water to advance a costly ditch carrying such menaces, is even when our ancient ditch such work with slave labor they did not do the unnecessary.

The idea of two canals is preposterous. The idea of not utilizing an existing waterway is shameful waste. Palm Beach Post.

THE FIRST—AND LAST (?)

Jim Lee, state controller, has published and circulated a little book entitled "List of Employees of the State of Florida," giving the name of every one on the payroll and the amount received.

This is the first time in the history of the state that this information has been compiled, and if politics and any honest legislator can take the information contained in this little book and write a reorganization bill for the government of Florida that will save the taxpayer millions of dollars.

We congratulate you, Colonel Lee, for giving the people the information that they have a right to know. And thank you for a copy of same.—Janey News.

Awarding a badge of distinction to a man who has paid his taxes, as has been suggested, sounds like a good idea. He really ought to have something to wear. Others still have their shirts.

The Missouri man, who advertised his possessions for sale because he is going on relief, has the virtue of honesty at least.

REAL ESTATE IS GOOD

Wisebought real estate in the Glades of Palm Beach County, either City property or acreage, is a good investment.

Sugar is reasonably sure of an early sizable expansion in plantings of cane and manufacture.

Ramie, according to those in the "know" will begin its invasion into the textile field in Belle Glade, and will gradually absorb a tremendous acreage.

LAKELAND NEWS:

Welcome to Governor Fred Preston Cone. If he does all right, we are for him and if he crosses up the interests of the taxpayers and plays politics, we won't mind saying so. As our governor we are going to give him credit for being sincere in his declarations and thus far he has been hitting at the root of most of the troubles in this state and what is more, promises to correct them.

More power to a leader, elected by the people who has the backbone to go ahead and represent them as he knows he should and Fred Cone, we believe is one of that kind.

In dealing with the legislature, of course, the governor is only one man. He has plenty of power but when these politicians who have been dominating the business of the state get their machinery running in high gear, we will see something pop sure enough. But Cone is a man who can stay with them. He has been in the senate himself long enough to know how the wires are pulled and what it takes to tie the hands of a chief executive and we suspect that he will be well prepared when the time comes.

We hope and believe he will stand hitched to the principles he has adopted.

Attend the Birthday Ball for the President tonight at the Legion in Pahokee.

PIONEERS HIT THE TRAIL AGAIN IN 3,000,000 HOMES ON WHEELS

Three million new pioneers are on the trail "seeing America first." Unlike the hardy souls who crossed the continent in covered wagons, afoot, or on horseback, however, these new pioneers are traveling in style. Nor is their day's journey limited to the distance a team of horses or a yoke of oxen can cover. They travel hundreds of miles in a day.

These new pioneers are America's trailer travelers. Only a few short years ago, there were millions of automobiles on the highways. But not many of them pulled trailers. In fact, trailers were limited almost entirely to commercial use.

Now, however, tourist camps, main highways, by-ways, wooded hillsides in the north during the summer and in the south during the winter, are crowded with them.

In these trailers, many a family is touring the length and breadth of the land, happier than if they were tied to an ordinary house, and as comfortable, too. For nowadays the trailer, like the modern automobile, is almost a work of art.

The best estimates are that this year 3,000,000 of these new pioneers will travel, sleep, and eat in trailers.

Opinion is divided as to what caused the rapid development of trailers. Some say it was a combination of things: Better automobiles to pull them, better highways to ride on, lower living costs, more free time from work, and better trailers for less money.

Regardless of which was the bigger reason, a new industry is here, new in the sense that it far exceeds anything that could have been expected a few years back. And besides providing homes of wheels for 3,000,000 new pioneers, this is one of the new industries that are constantly rising to provide thousands of new jobs.

Rosa Porselle Looks Forward to Her First Opera Role of the New Season

By Rosa Porselle

My first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera this season fills me with a certain apprehension. It isn't that the prospect of a great audience frightens me, or even the fear of the critics that all singers must confront when they step onto the great stage; I'm more or less used to those things. But the prospect of a great audience and the fear of the critics are not the things that I am apprehensive about. I am apprehensive about the fact that I am stepping onto the stage as a soloist, and that I am stepping onto the stage as a soloist, and that I am stepping onto the stage as a soloist.

And "Carmen," for all its beauty of color and movement and song, is essentially a soloist's opera. It is an opera that demands a soloist's performance. It is an opera that demands a soloist's performance. It is an opera that demands a soloist's performance.

Perhaps Carmen should be pitted, then, to help her escape. It is a pitted to help her escape. It is a pitted to help her escape. It is a pitted to help her escape.

But Don Jose is unhappy in his out-law environment and Carmen, who thought turn more and more to the arrogant treader, Escamillo, who has courted her favor, pres of the desert's dog-like devotion, little more than a puppet in the hands of the man who has seduced her.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Crews and daughter, Beatrice, visited friends in Indianapolis Sunday.

A. Q. Howell was a business visitor in West Palm Beach Friday and Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Elzabre and Mrs. Doyce Crocker were business visitors in West Palm Beach Monday.

Clarence J. Hewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hewell, who is in the navy, spent the past 20 days in Canal Point with his parents, and is returning today for radio school at Norfolk, Va.

Will Stage Horror Parade in Duval

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 28.—(FNS)—Judge J. Muncy Anderson this city's anti-accident crusading magistrate, has arranged for an accident-horror parade here on Feb. 6, as a safety week feature.

Floats depicting the fatal results of drunken driving and speed demons and wrecks involving demolished auto, will be in the procession. Bands playing funeral dirges and paraders marching at funeral pace will complete the melancholy yet effective story designed to create greater caution and consideration on the highways. The idea is a novel one in the history of state safety programs and should have desirable results.

BERT LAPP WON—

(Continued from Page 1) but was still good enough with his 52 to steal the low net honors by a single stroke. And just to show the rest of the field that he was very much in the play, Sam grabbed the honors for points against par, scoring 85 points, which was again exactly one better than Gibbons' 84.

Henry Kilpatrick, Jr., won the 9 hole bracket without much trouble. Although the entry in this division was somewhat short, Henry's card of 62-18-44 was far below his closest competitor.

Activities at the club this week include topdressing and partial reseeded of the first five greens. These greens will be open for next Sunday's play, however. The remaining four greens will be given the same treatment next week and will be closed during that time. The unusually warm weather has been rather hard on December's fine plants, but the club's electric watering system is doing a fine job of keeping the greens in the best condition possible under existing conditions.

Next Sunday's event will be strictly a handicap medal affair. The two main prizes will go to the lowest and low net scores. Prizes will also be awarded for the least number of putts on 18 holes and the lowest total score on holes No. 3, 4, 5 and 8, handicap deducted.

In the playoff between Forest Banning and E. G. Kilpatrick, who tied in the 9 hole event of the week previous, Banning won by three strokes.

beauty; he forgets the tender devotion of the gentle Micaela, his love, the fall of his sword and his honor as a soldier. When the insolent Carmen is arrested for stabbing

Carmen, who meanwhile has lead in the cards her own early death, leaves the most and pompously votes him to pursue with Micaela, who has come to tell him that dying mother's wish to see her son again.

As the last act opens we see a gay crowd about to enter the bull ring at Seville. Carmen comes upon the scene triumphantly with her new lover. She ignores warnings that the ruined and desperate Don Jose is nearby and, alone after the crowd has gone and she has been left alone, she begins to sing a new and respectable life with him and then, enraged when she throws his ring into the dirt, she turns to the heart.

Will Stage Horror Parade in Duval

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 28.—(FNS)—Judge J. Muncy Anderson this city's anti-accident crusading magistrate, has arranged for an accident-horror parade here on Feb. 6, as a safety week feature.

Floats depicting the fatal results of drunken driving and speed demons and wrecks involving demolished auto, will be in the procession. Bands playing funeral dirges and paraders marching at funeral pace will complete the melancholy yet effective story designed to create greater caution and consideration on the highways. The idea is a novel one in the history of state safety programs and should have desirable results.

BERT LAPP WON—

(Continued from Page 1) but was still good enough with his 52 to steal the low net honors by a single stroke. And just to show the rest of the field that he was very much in the play, Sam grabbed the honors for points against par, scoring 85 points, which was again exactly one better than Gibbons' 84.

Henry Kilpatrick, Jr., won the 9 hole bracket without much trouble. Although the entry in this division was somewhat short, Henry's card of 62-18-44 was far below his closest competitor.

plants, and the sit down strikers in other plants have stopped all operations here.

It is estimated that more than 90% of the men in the plants are eager to return to their jobs.

The employees assembled last week to receive their pay checks, their last pay until the resumption of operations.

While waiting for the paymaster's staff, the men held meetings in the four cafeterias of the division and appointed a committee to express their opposition to the strikers and those causing their enforced idleness.

Appointing an employee committee, headed by Arthur Evans and George Gilbert, workers in the plant, the groups voted to publicize their opposition to the strike through personal telegrams to Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan and President Roosevelt. After the meetings, the four groups assembled in front of the main plant for a mass demonstration of protest under banners with the legends: "We don't want a strike," "We want our jobs back," "We object to minority rule," and "No labor dictators for us."

Since this demonstration in Detroit, a conference has taken place between officials of General Motors corporation and representatives of the striking faction. The meeting was called by the governor and at its conclusion, statements were issued to the effect that negotiations for an early resumption of production would take place, starting today.
